

It just never stops.

The calls just keep coming.

This one is from a blocked number.

This one's not from a blocked number.

This is just one of hundreds.

Now it's a telemarketer.

Now it's a pollster.

Now it's—wait, I thought we paid that already—a collection agency.

Now it's the doctor's office calling.

The doctor wants to schedule our next appointment.

The doctor wants to talk about a lab result.

The doctor wants to share more medium news with us.

Here's one from the 404 area code.

Here's one I let roll to voicemail.

Here's one where the caller left a message.

They said they are from Make-A-Wish™ Georgia.

They said they are sorry that they missed me.

They said to call them back when I can.

They said they have some good news.

They said...

They said that...

They said that, this time, it's okay to get our hopes up.

Hope?

Hope.

Well, it just never stops.

Thank you for creating hope

I wish to have a backyard makeover

You are making a difference.

For our wish families, the phone calls never stop. Some days, it's the collection agency. Other days, it's the doctor's office. On the days that conversations around appointments, treatments and lab results feel never-ending, there is one call that immediately brings hope.

When we tell our families that their child's wish is coming true, hope travels through the phone line too. Suddenly, light breaks through the fog of illness, shining rays of possibility and igniting dreams again.

That's what YOUR support sparks: the gift of hope.

Because you're such a crucial part of our mission, you're invited to show how YOU create hope for wishes on April 29 – World Wish Day®. Check out how!
